THE FLIGHT

Nineteen hundred and sixty-seven Jesuit High School Shreveport, Louisiana

Carl Liberto ..... Editor

Germain Cassiere ..... Cover design

Francis X. Pistorius, S.J. . . Advisor

PART I

If you are like most people you wouldn't be reading this introduction at all. And the few who do read it have probably finished paging through the book a couple of times now and are bored with it; so having nothing else to do, they turn back to the first page and read the introduction. Since you are already bored with the content of the book an introduction now is a little superfluous. Here is my suggestion: put the book down for a few hours; then come back to it and start refreshed.

PART II

You have just opened the 1967 Flight. It's not an easy book to look at if you want anything from it. It concerns three hundred and twenty boys and their victories and defeats; their contributions and rewards. They worked hard living the months between March 1966 and February 1967 and this staff could find no easy way to present their works.

So here's your job. It's not easy. You should look at this book as an outsider, a reader of fiction. This is the way to start. Then as you look at each picture start to feel the individual, become the individual. As you look at the football player in the picture under the heading "Jesuit second in State," try to feel the pride and frustration of being second place while you try not to feel second best. Look at the debater. Feel his heart beat: his hands grab his quotes as he gets up to speak.

Enough prompting. Turn the page and begin your labors; afterwards you should be exhausted from your work.

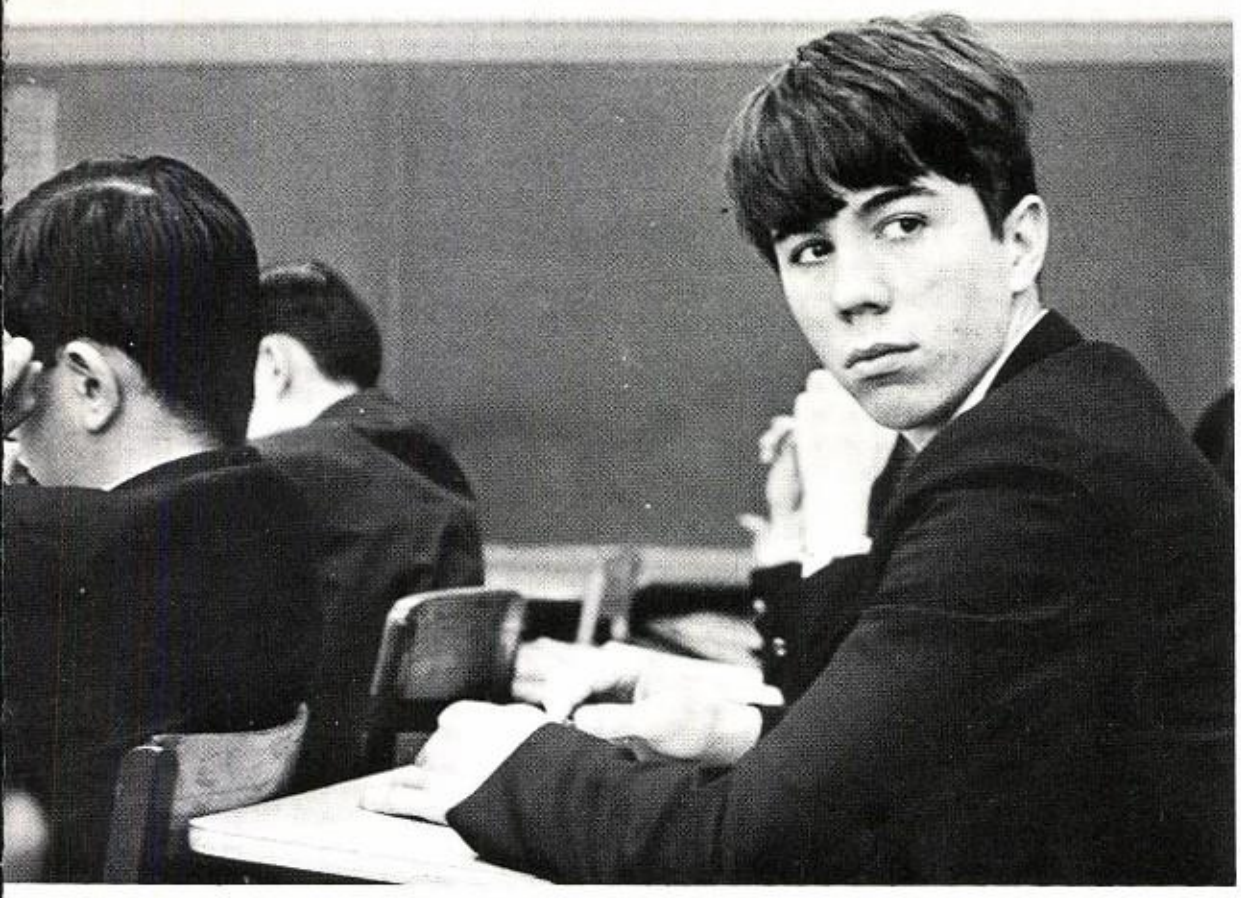
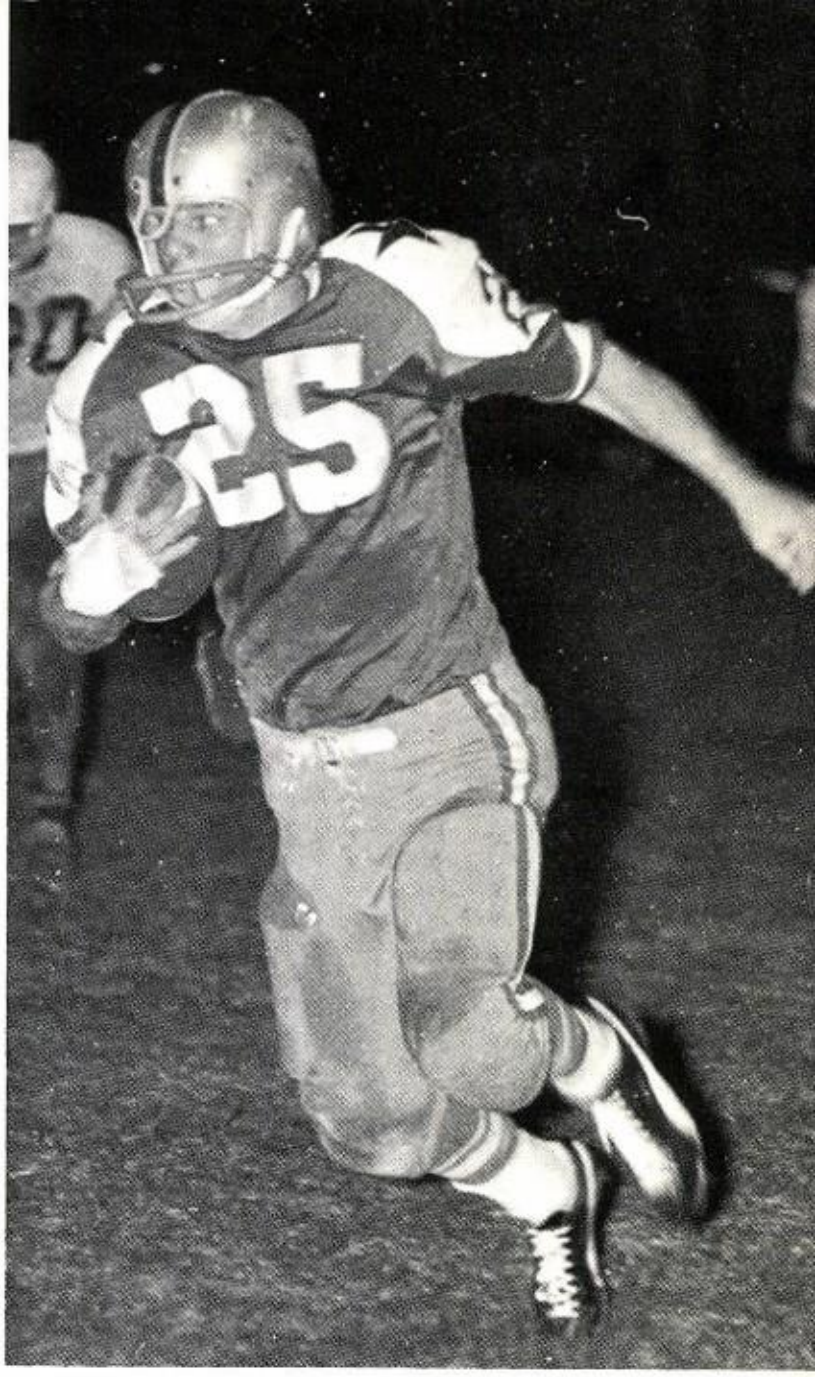
INDIVIDUALS . . .

"There is no hope for humanity, only for individuals." (Albert Camus)





INDIVIDUALS . . .

There are three hundred and twenty one individual students at Jesuit. They can be classified, grouped, tested, ranked, and given numbers; but they will always remain individuals. But three hundred and twenty one individuals alone do not make a high school. They lack something. There is an aimless void. The thing which fills this void is guidance. But what kind of guidance? And where does the guidance point?

INDIVIDUALS PLUS FACULTY

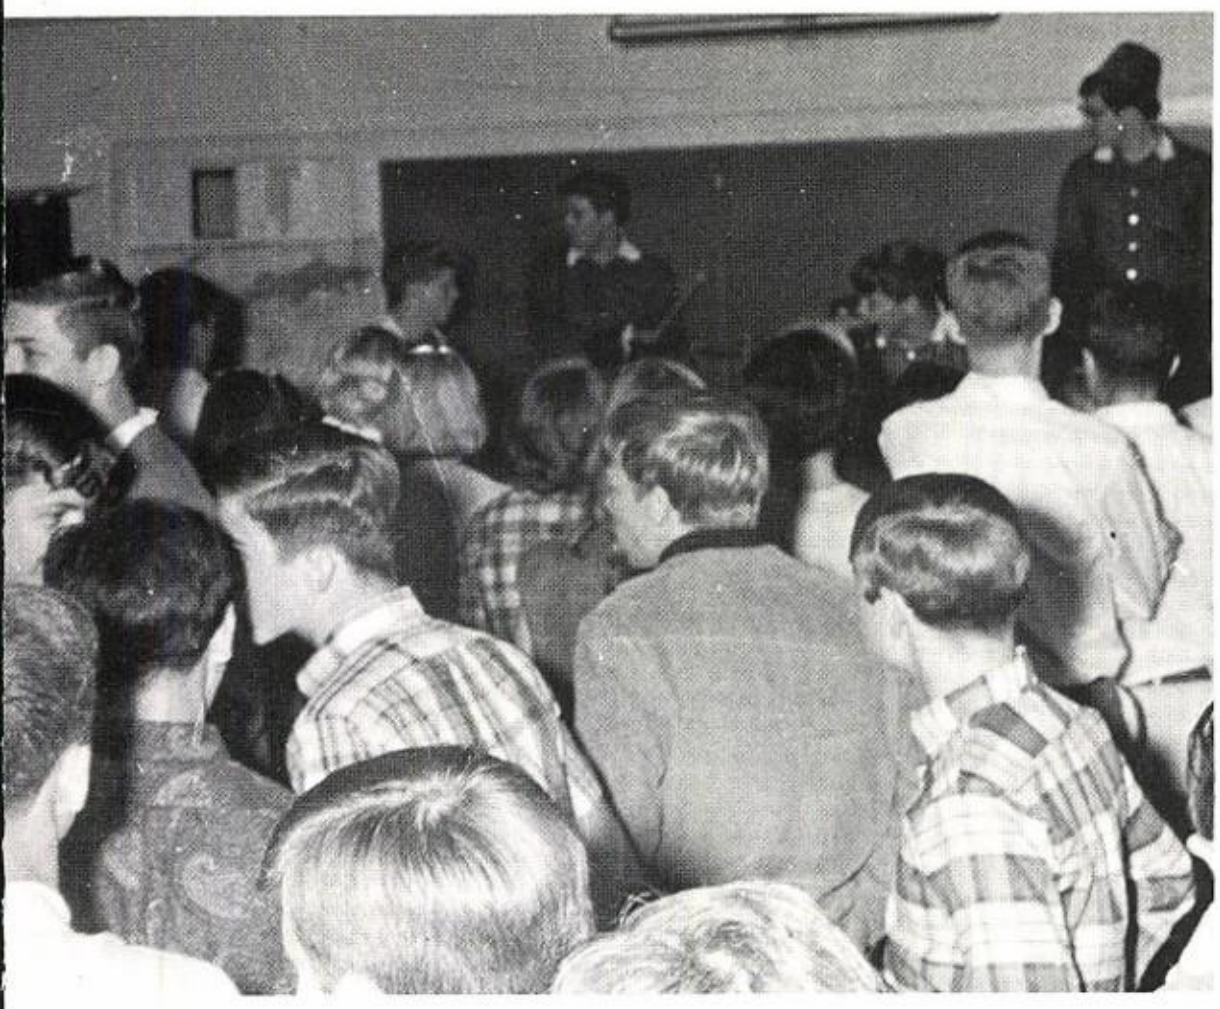
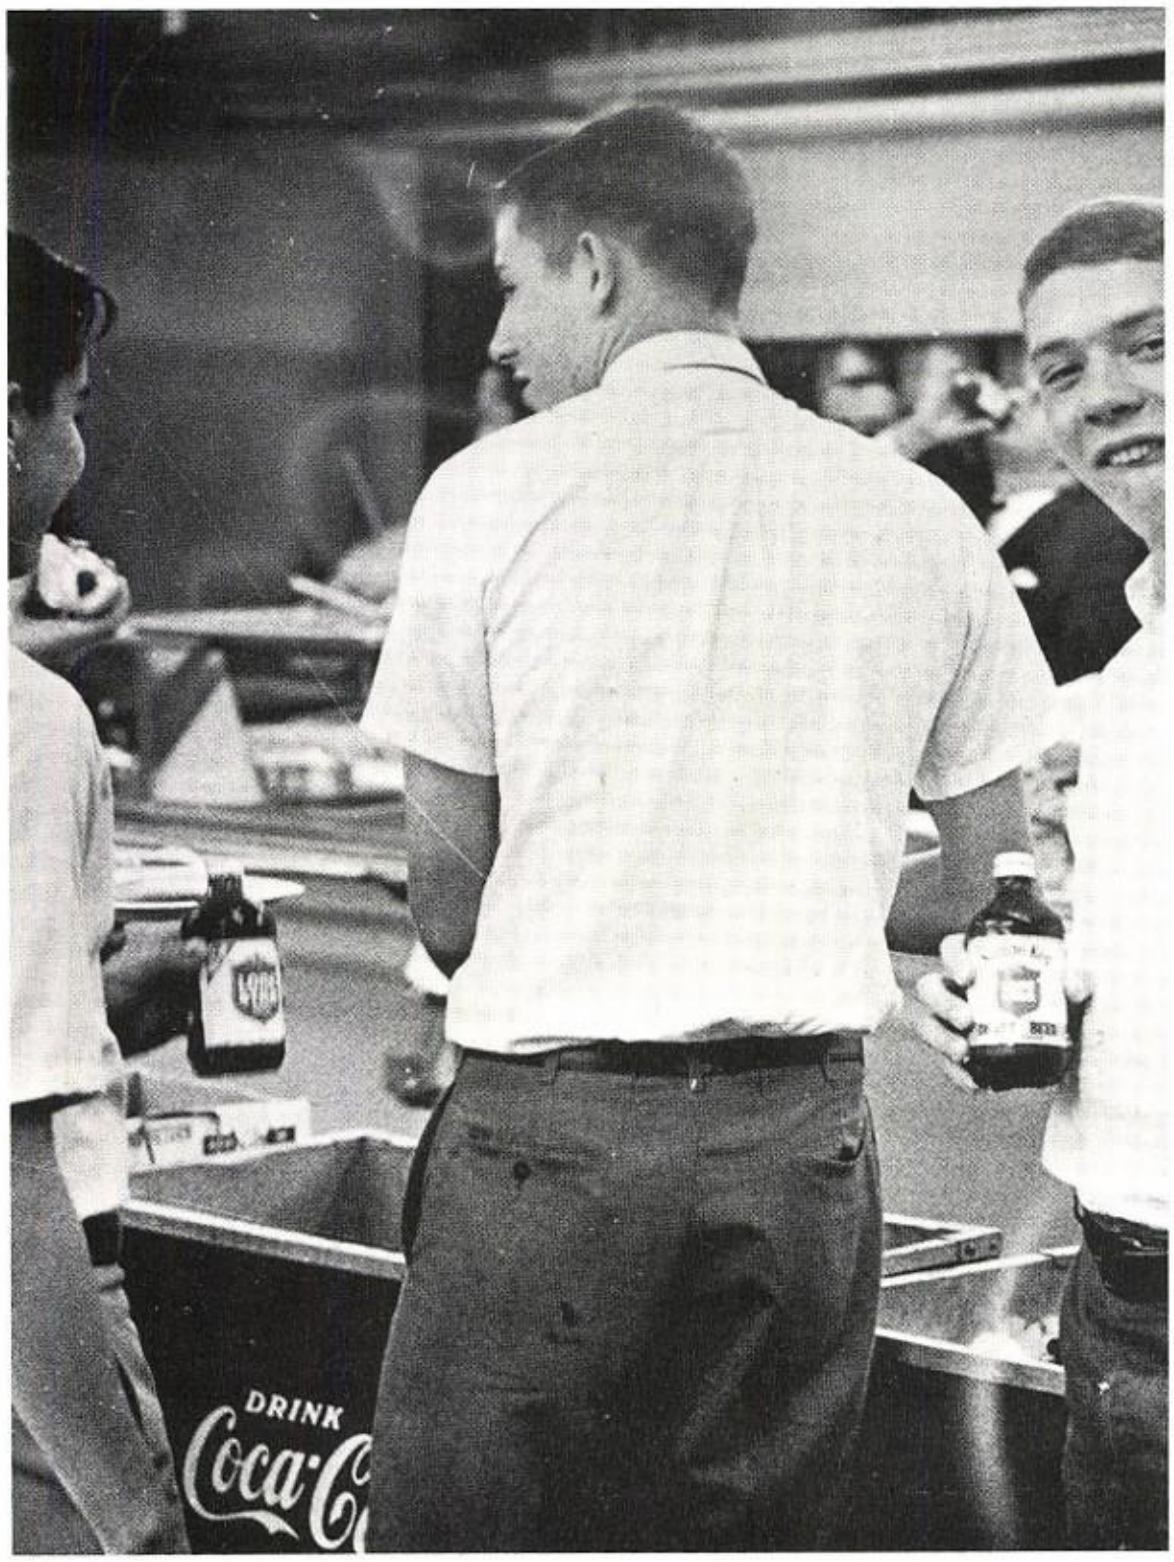
The faculty provides the guidance. But the faculty is composed of individuals also. So guidance comes from individuals of the faculty. What is achieved by this face-to-face confrontation of student-individual with faculty-individual?

JESUIT HIGH SCHOOL?





JESUIT HIGH SCHOOL?

Through all the confrontations, through all the time, work, guts, sweat, wins, losses, ability, merit, and pride something emerges. What? We don't know what, but we have a name for it, Jesuit High School. After we leave this location in time and space that comprise our years at Jesuit, we will find we never leave the confrontations with individuals. We still won't know what is to be gained or the reasons why, but we will have a name for it. The confrontation will be no longer between three hundred and twenty-one individuals and a faculty. It will no longer be called Jesuit High School. The confrontation will be with three billion individuals and we will call it life on earth. And as awesome as this situation seems, we have the feeling that something transcends it.

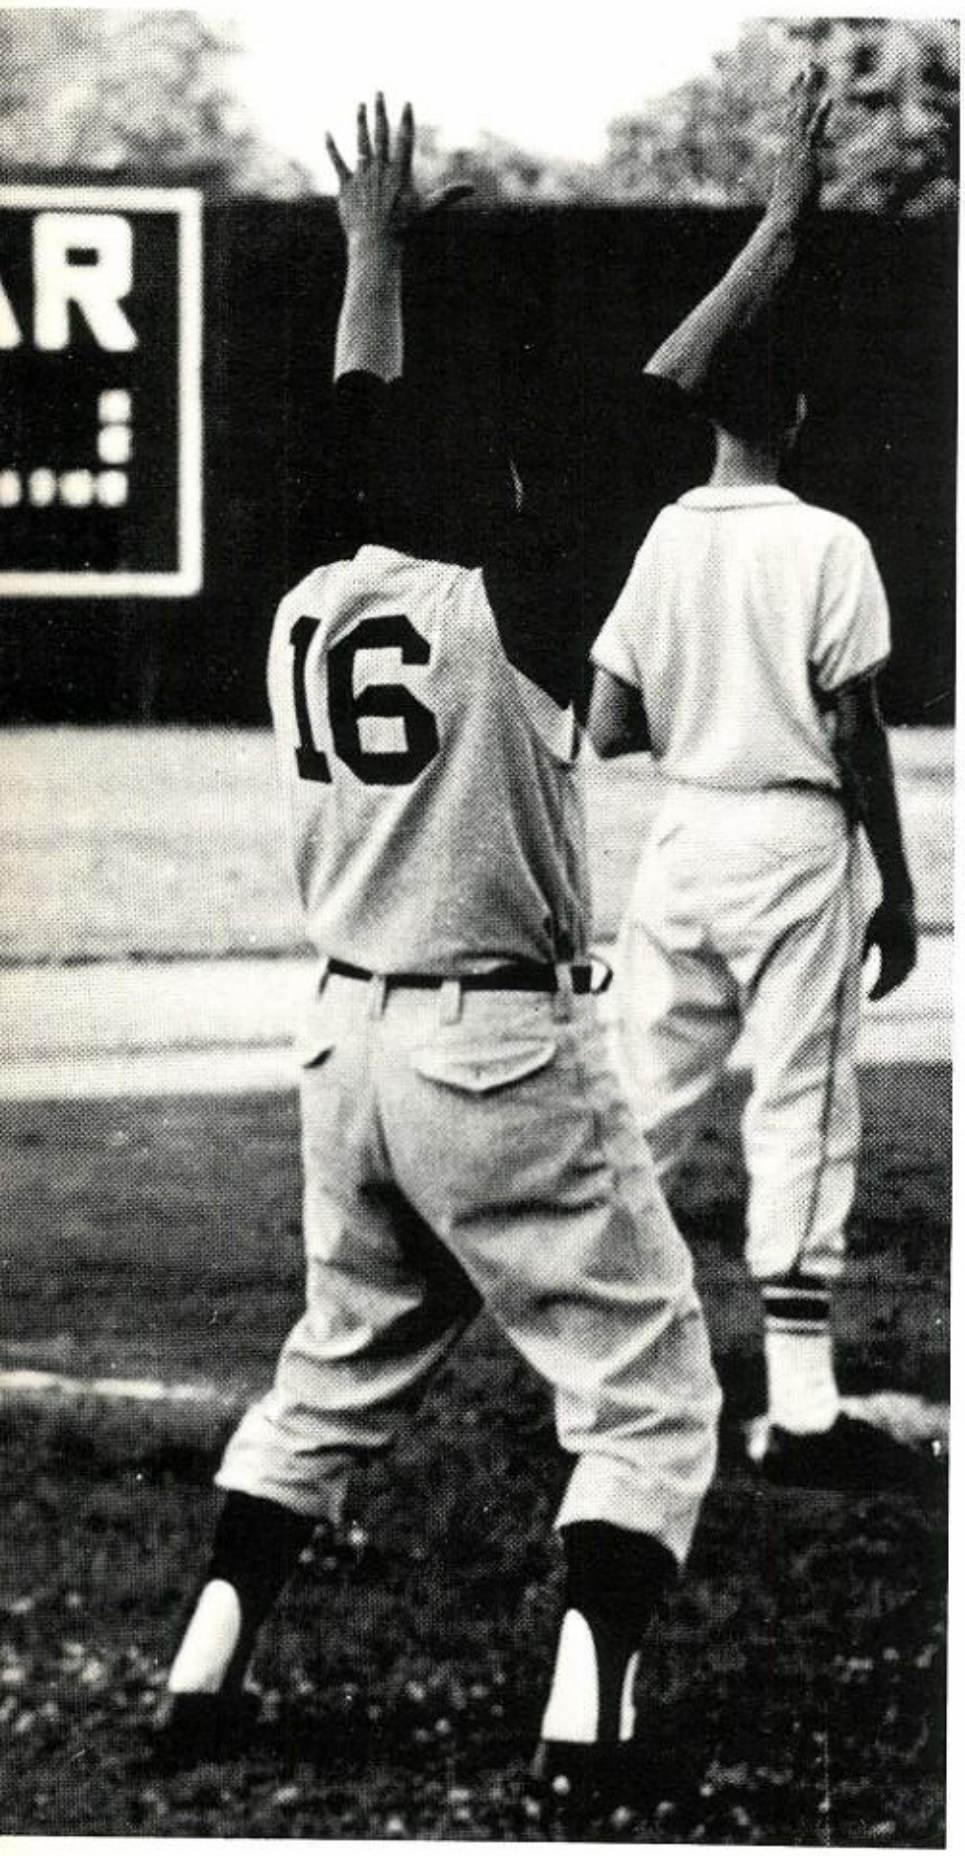
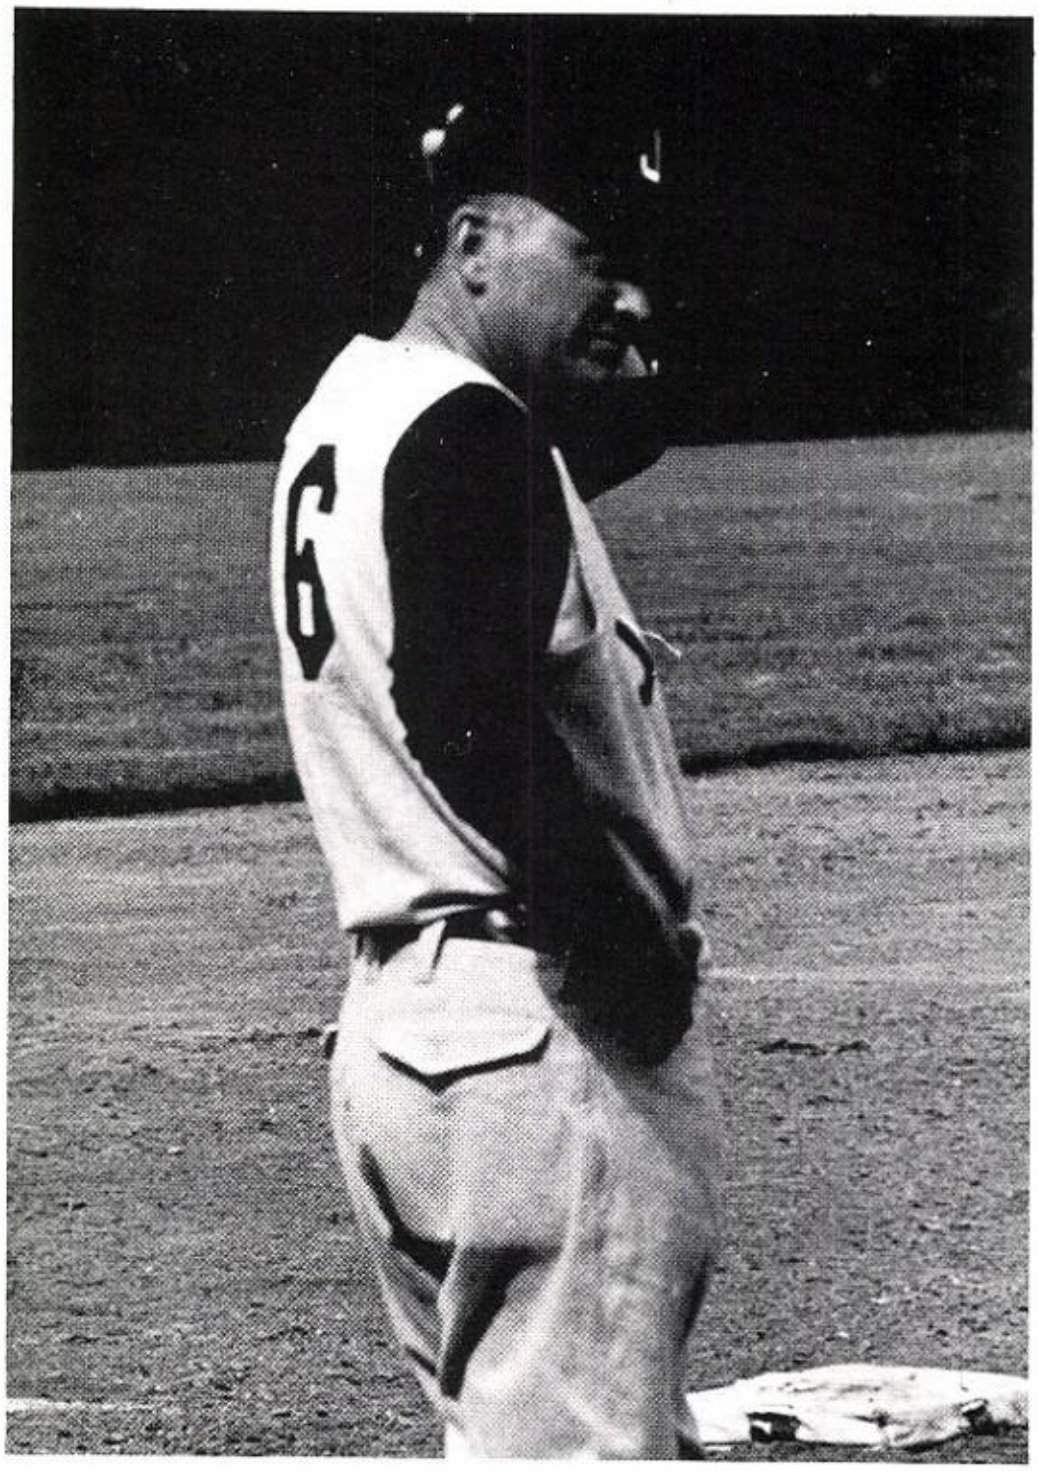
COACH FRANK CICERO

Winning seasons are nothing new for Frank Cicero's baseball teams. Since 1957—the year Jesuit was second in state—Flyer baseball teams have won the district crown three times including last year, and finished second in district three times. Jesuit won the state championship in 1964 under Coach Cicero, but this was just the high point in a winning career.





TRACK '66

The 1966 track season came as a pleasant surprise to everyone as Jesuit made itself known at every meet. With many of his lettermen returning Coach Tony Sardisco can look forward to another good season.

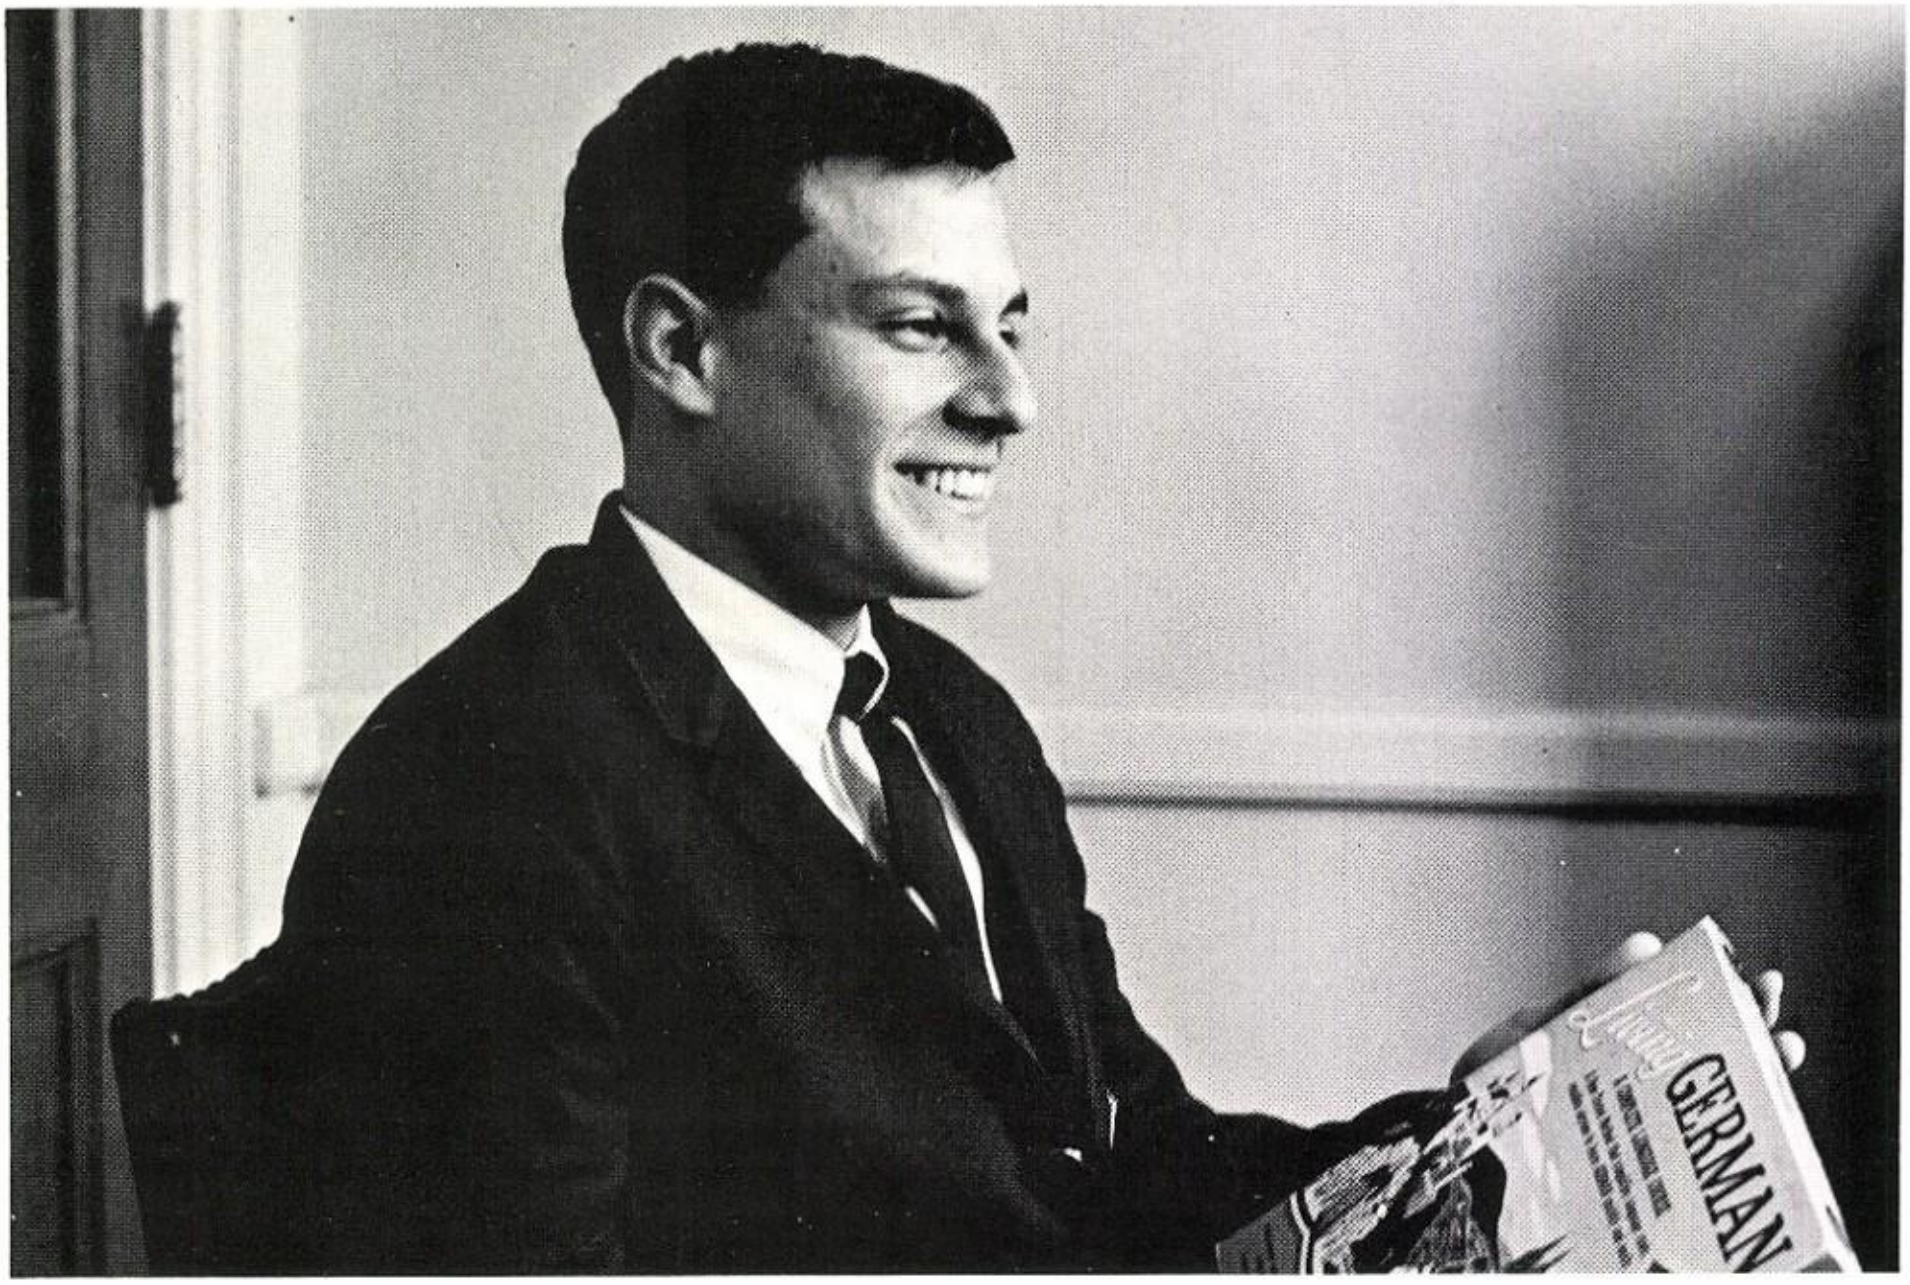
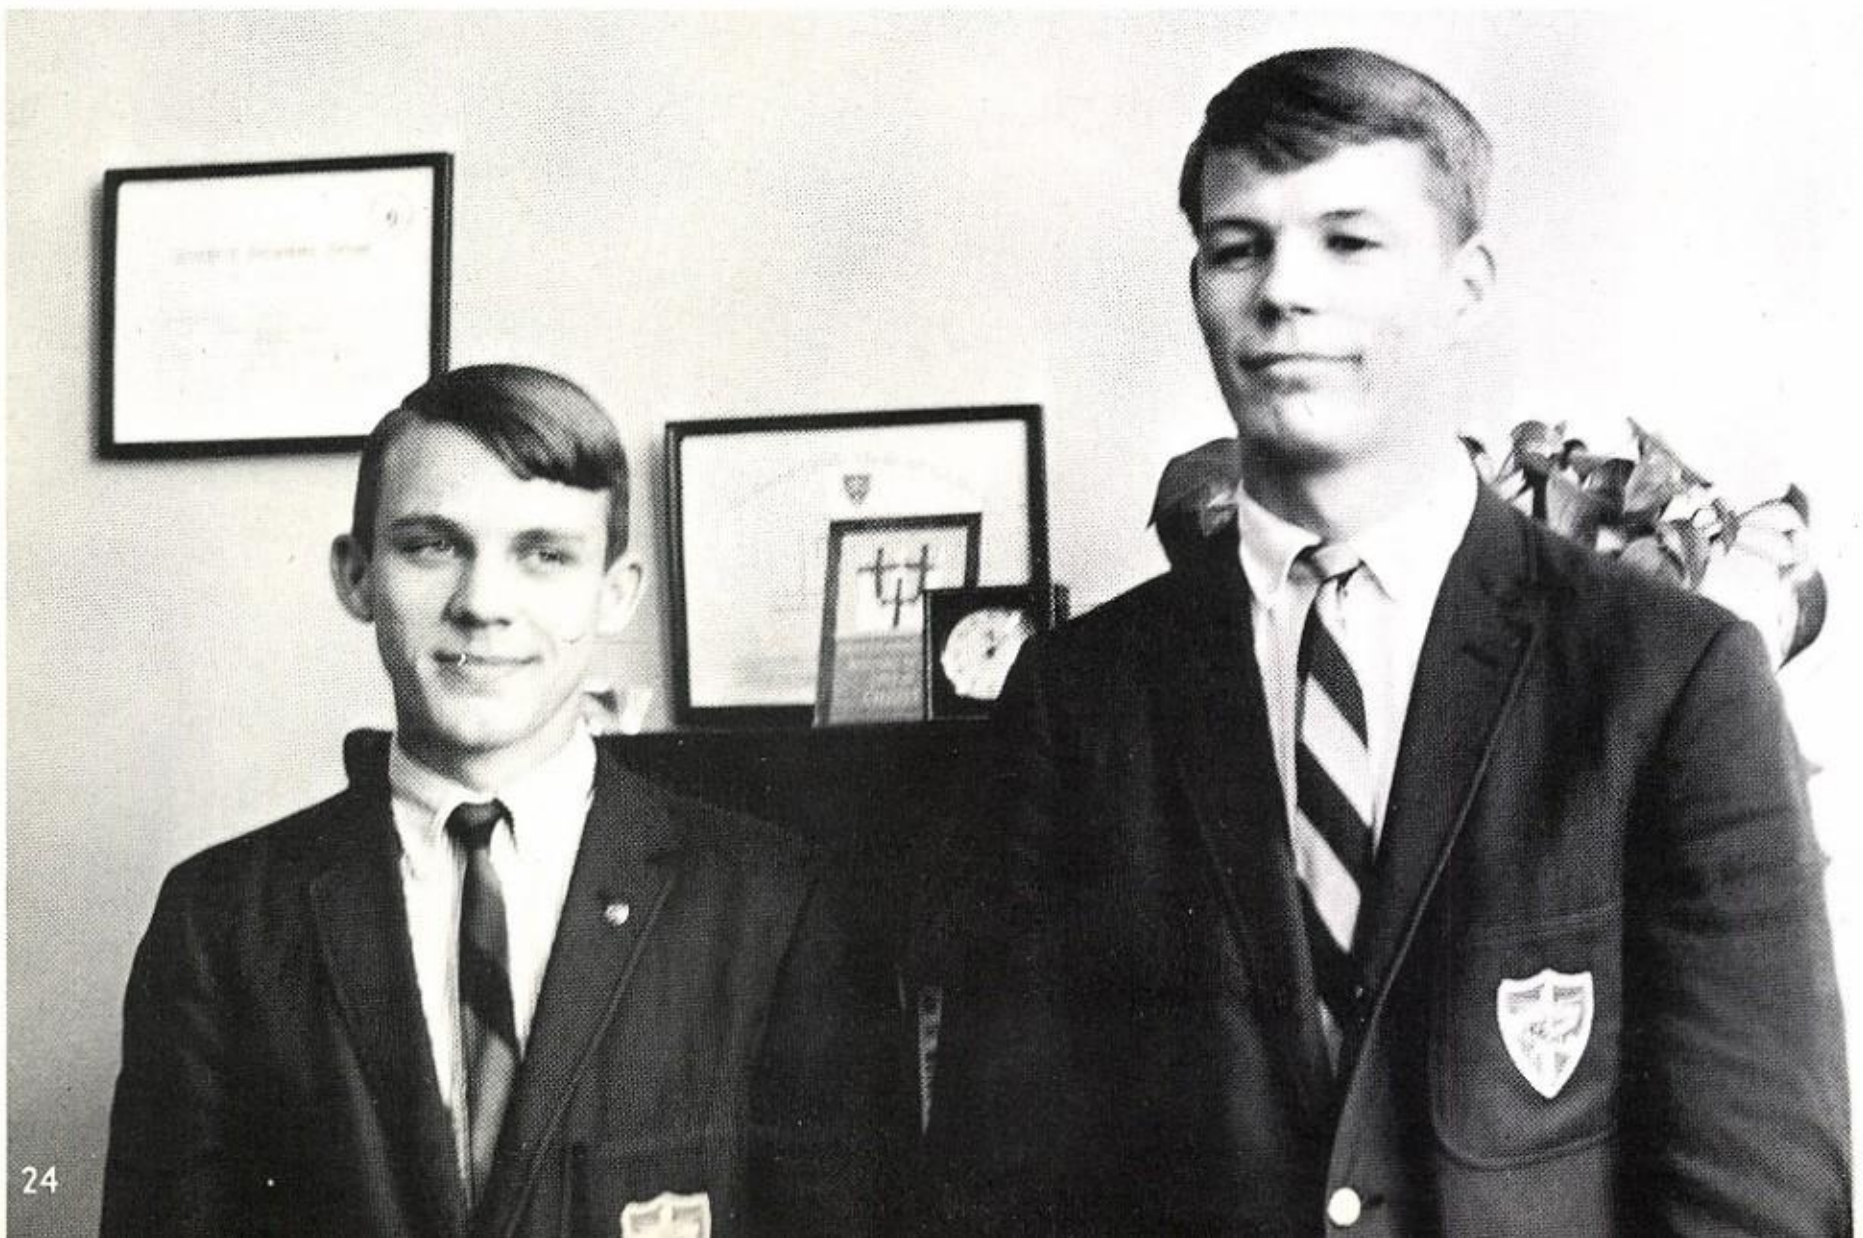
GRADUATION 1966

The class of '66 dispersed last year and its members began to go their own ways in search of their own personal dreams of life. Most went to college. It was of merit to those grads that many went on scholarships of one type or another. 10% of that class received academic scholarships.

Valedictorian Daniel Ridge is away at Rice, and Salutatorian Joe Looney is at Loyola of the South.

Summer Activities of Jesuit Students

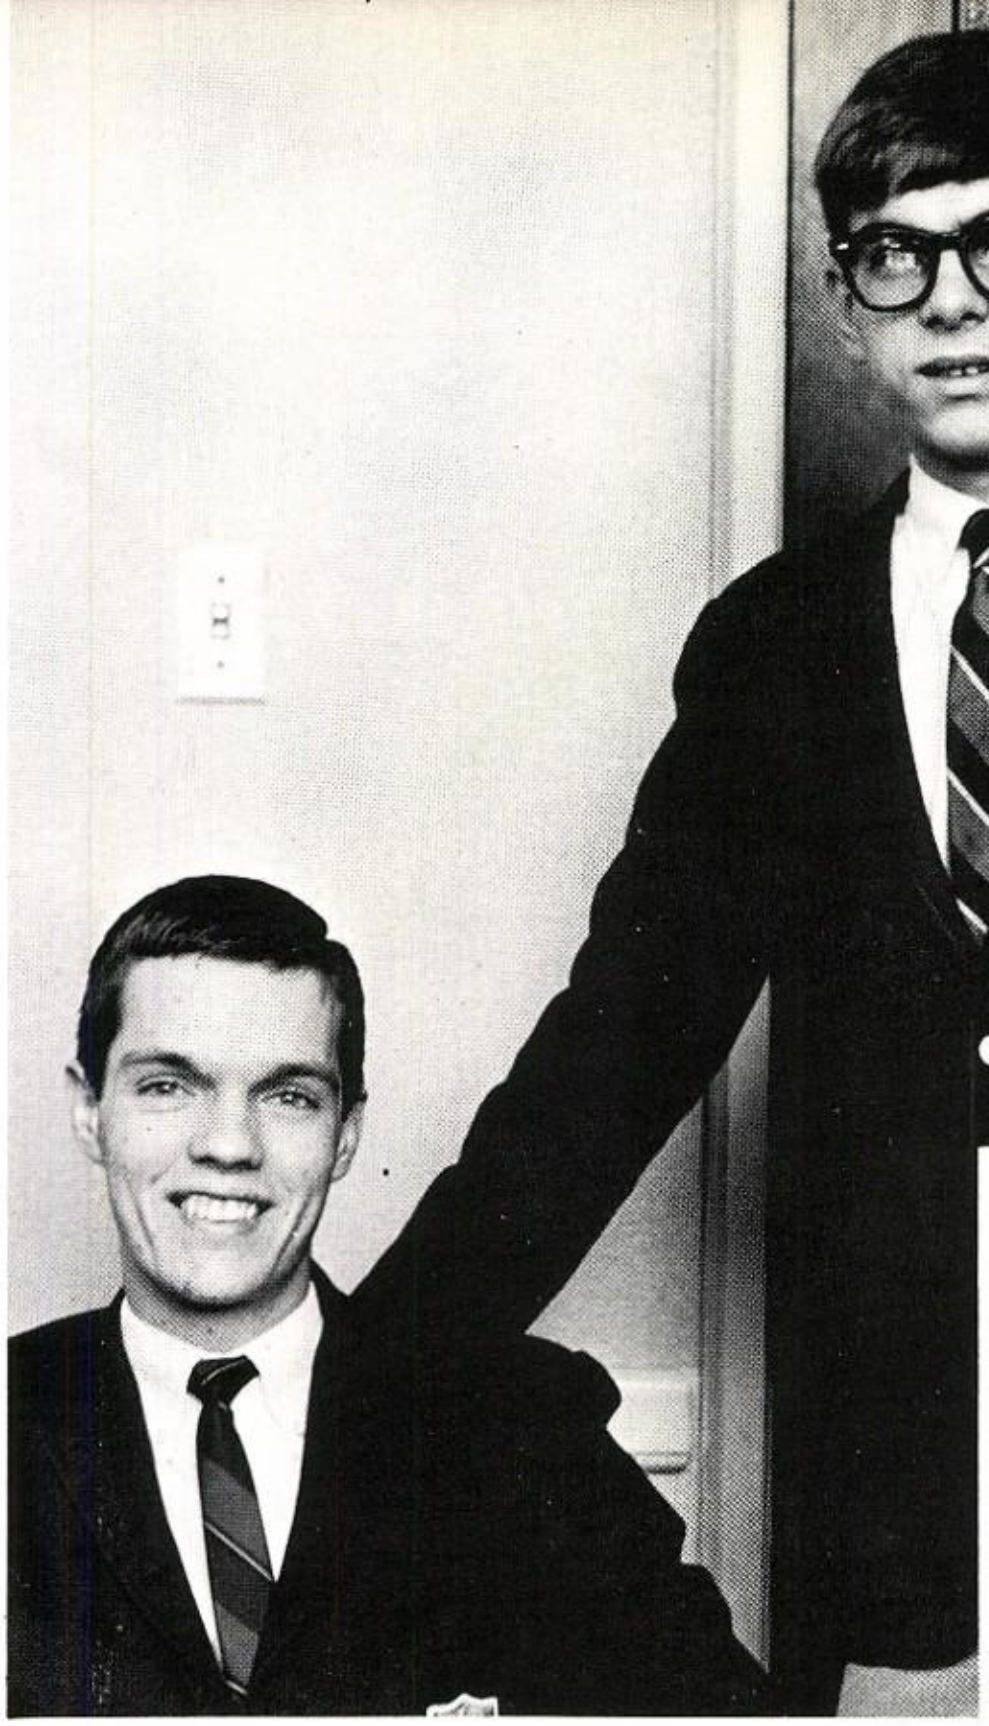




Jesuit students don't stop being Jesuit students during the summer, but a few remained Jesuit students in a special way as they represented their school in state, national and international activities.

Left: Henry Marshall and Carl Liberto attended the National Science Foundation Summer Science Training Project for nine weeks this summer at L.S.U.

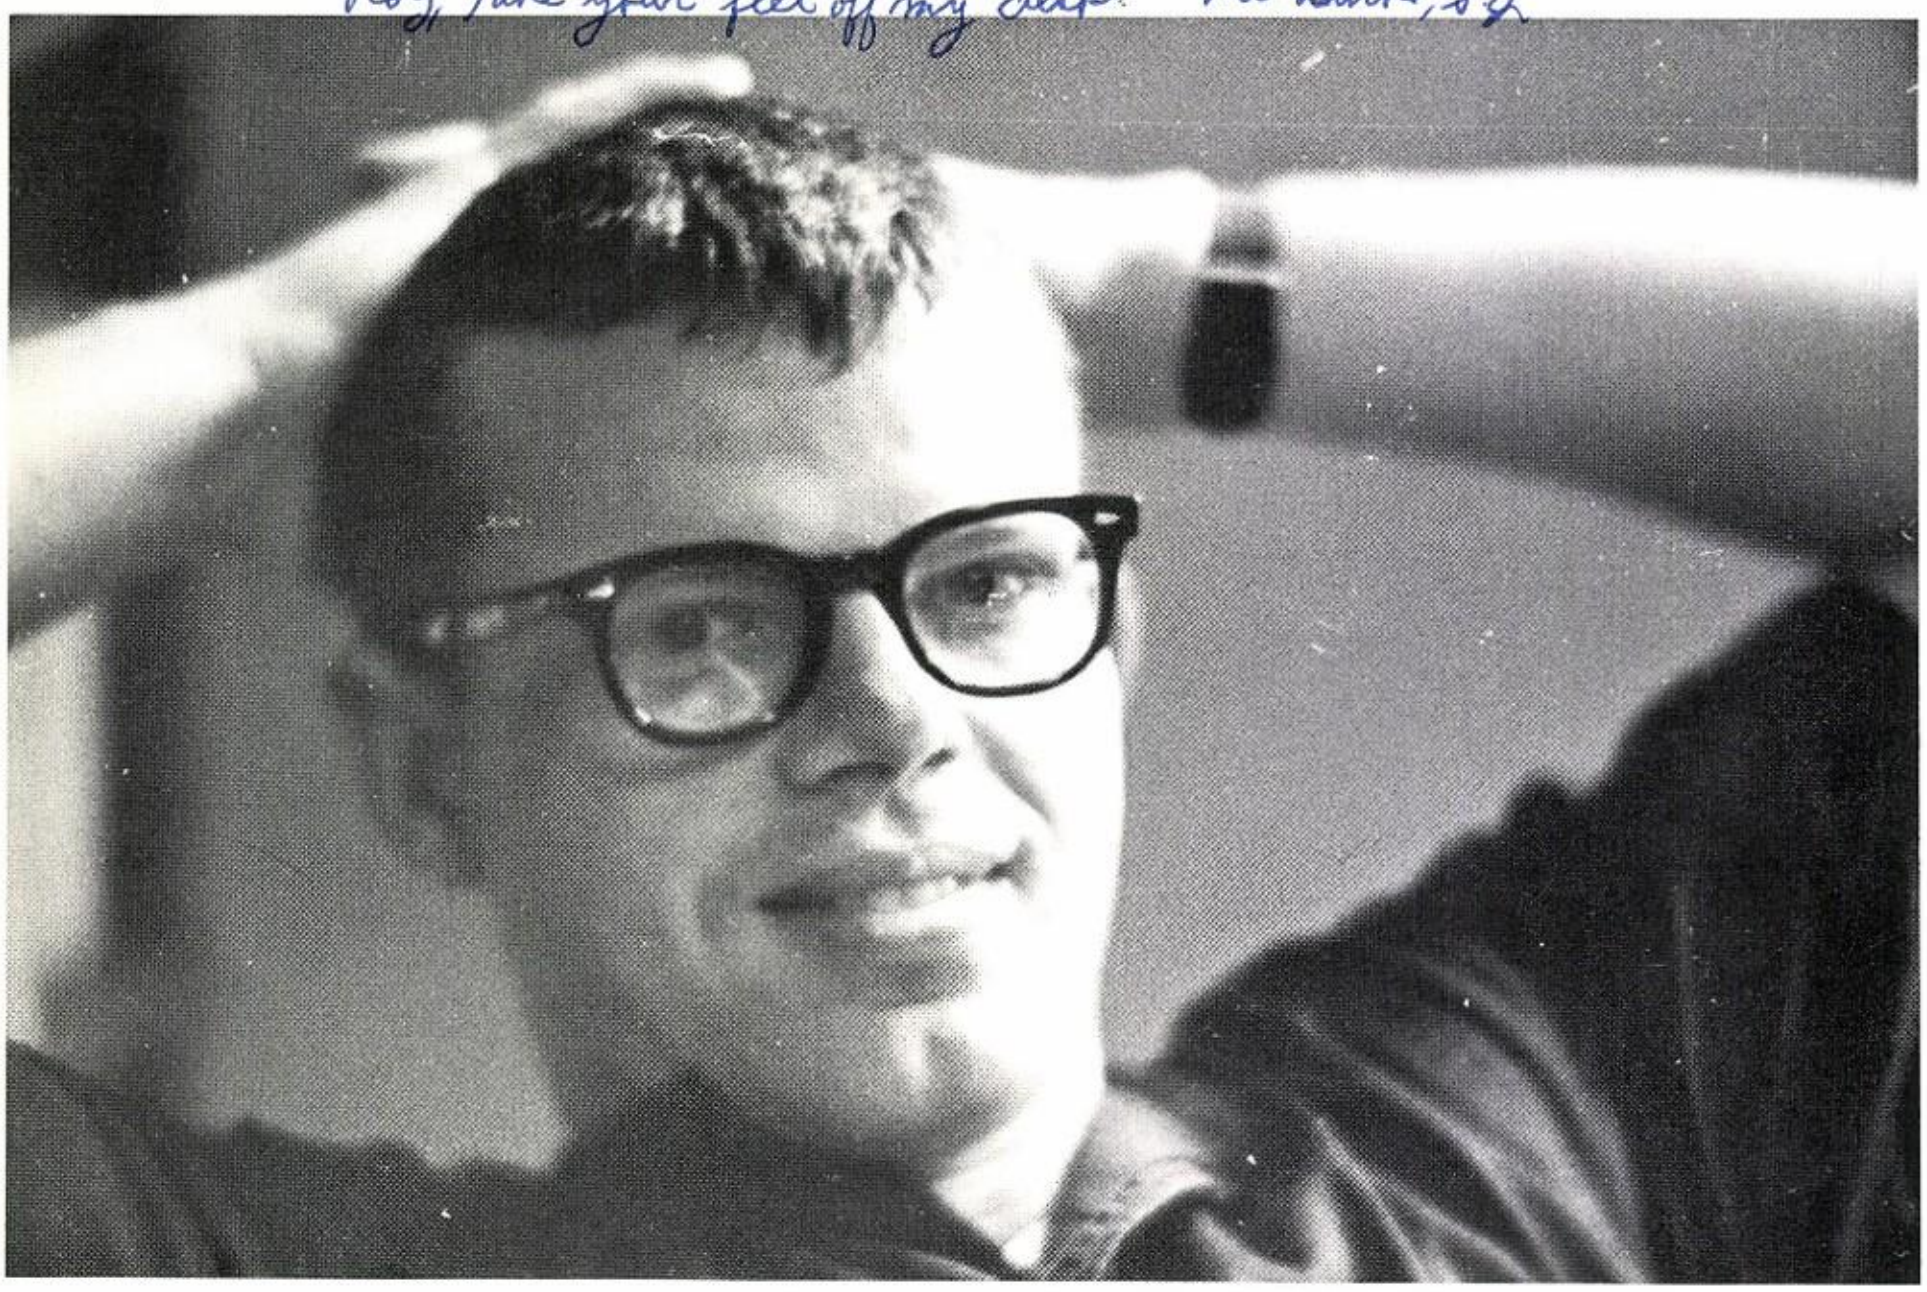
Bottom: It was during the summer that Mark Hannon was notified that he was a semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition. In that competition Henry Marshall won a letter of commendation.



Opposite page top: Pat Tarpy through his all-around skills and ability was chosen by Volkswagon to participate in an exchange program that sent him to Germany for the summer.

Opposite page bottom: Larry McDonald and Terry Looney were Jesuit's delegates to Pelican Boys State this summer. Looney was chosen to go to Boys Nation.

SEPTEMBER 1966 — SCHOOL AGAIN



At the end of the summer many things awaited the students on the first day of school.

Above right: The new Freshmen were there to haunt Mr. Burke.

Left: Mr. McCaffery was back to give his many words of wisdom and new ideas on how to teach French.

Gerald R. McCaffery
Jesuit High School
921 Jordan Street
Shreveport, Louisiana

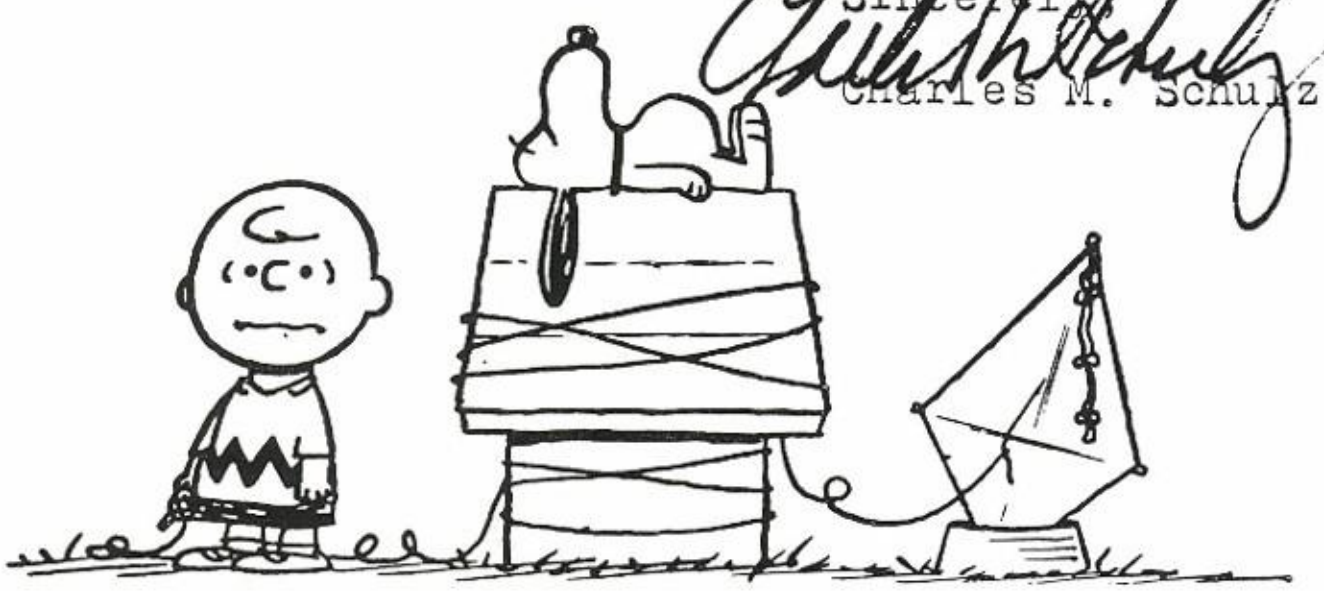
Dear Mr. McCaffery,

You certainly may have permission to use Snoopy as a specific image to go with your school name "Flyers."

I have enclosed a print of Snoopy in pursuit of the Red Baron, which should be just about what you want for your image.

Kindest regards.

Sincerely,
Charles M. Schulz



It was last spring that Mr. McCaffery wrote Charles M. Schulz and asked permission to use SNOOPY. Now it seems as if Snoopy had been with us since 1902.

The FLIGHT would like to publicly thank Mr. Schulz. His little dog has given Jesuit many chuckles and an even deeper pride mixed with the laughter.

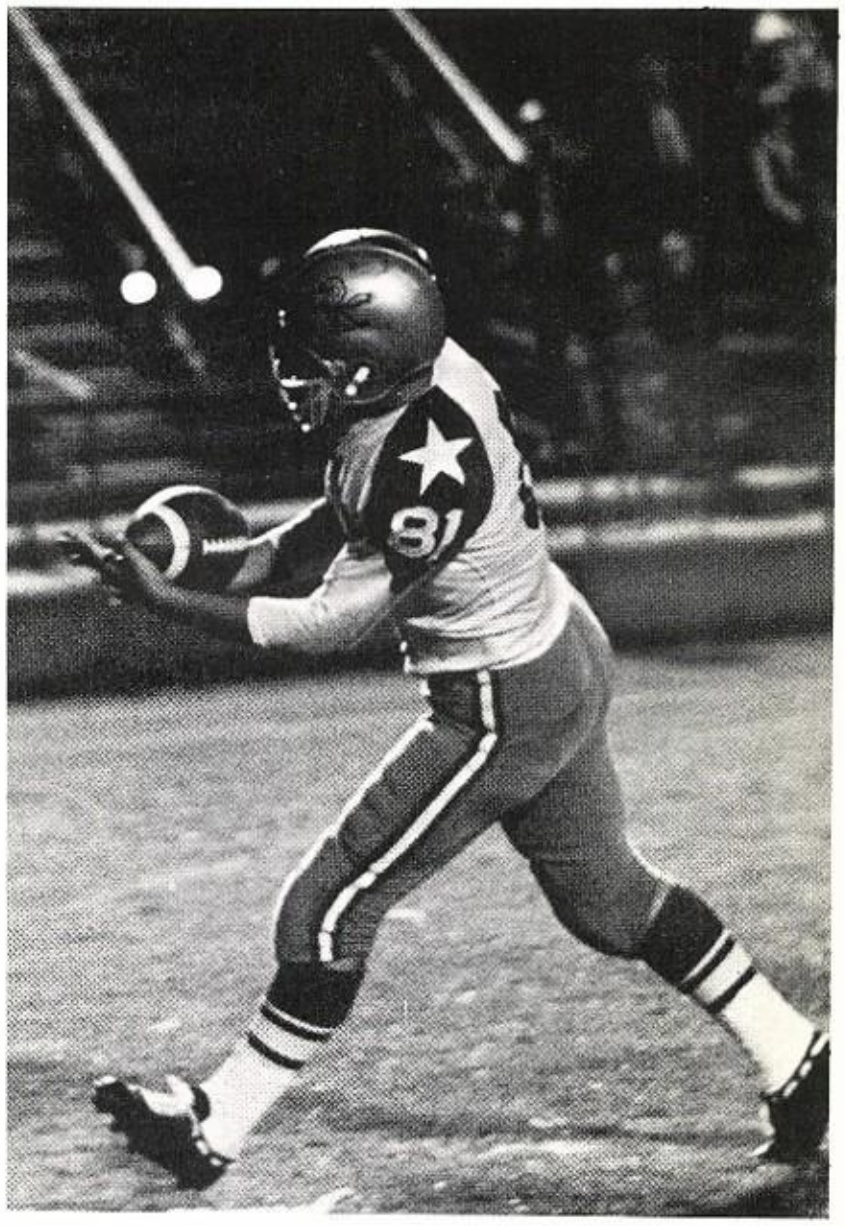
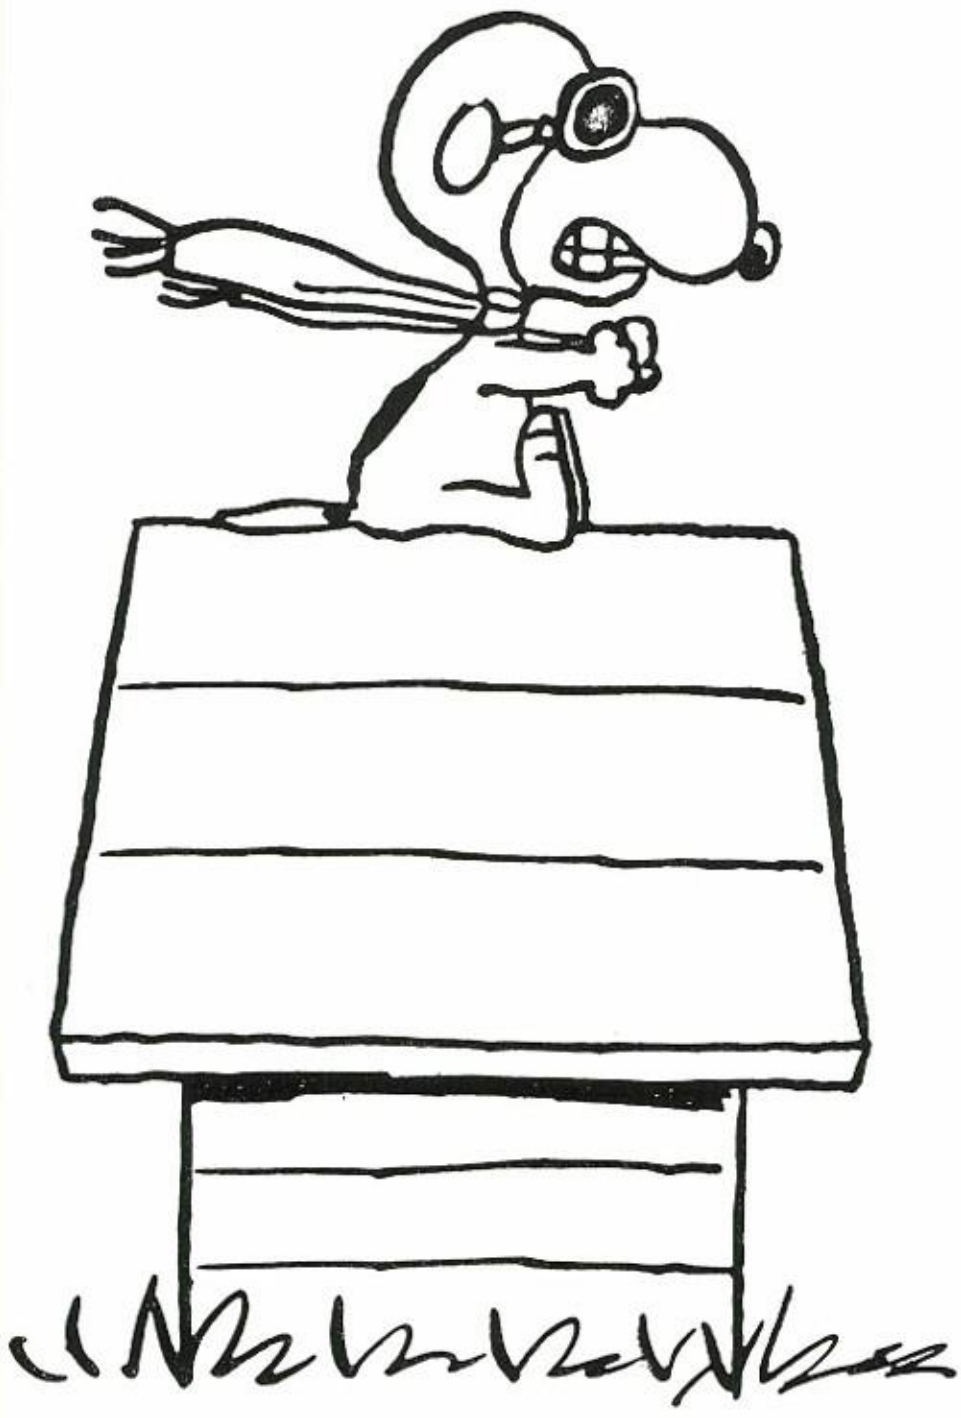
Bottom right: Andy Breffeilh stands by the dog house and model of Snoopy he and other freshmen built.





August 15 etc.

It started that hot August and didn't end until deep in December. From start to finish it was all desire. In the next few pages we will show a few pictures of desire.

At right: Greg Miciotto passes against Airline in summer scrimmage.

Bottom: Joe Miciotto practices kicking-off while Coach Brocato watches.

Snoopy's Squadron

It wasn't long before everyone was lauding our defense. This wasn't anything new, but this year they had a new name, Snoopy's Squadron.

At Left: Peter Ramsey, an all-state second team choice, punts to put the opponent in his own territory.

Springhill knew the team that they had to defeat to win district.

But they couldn't.

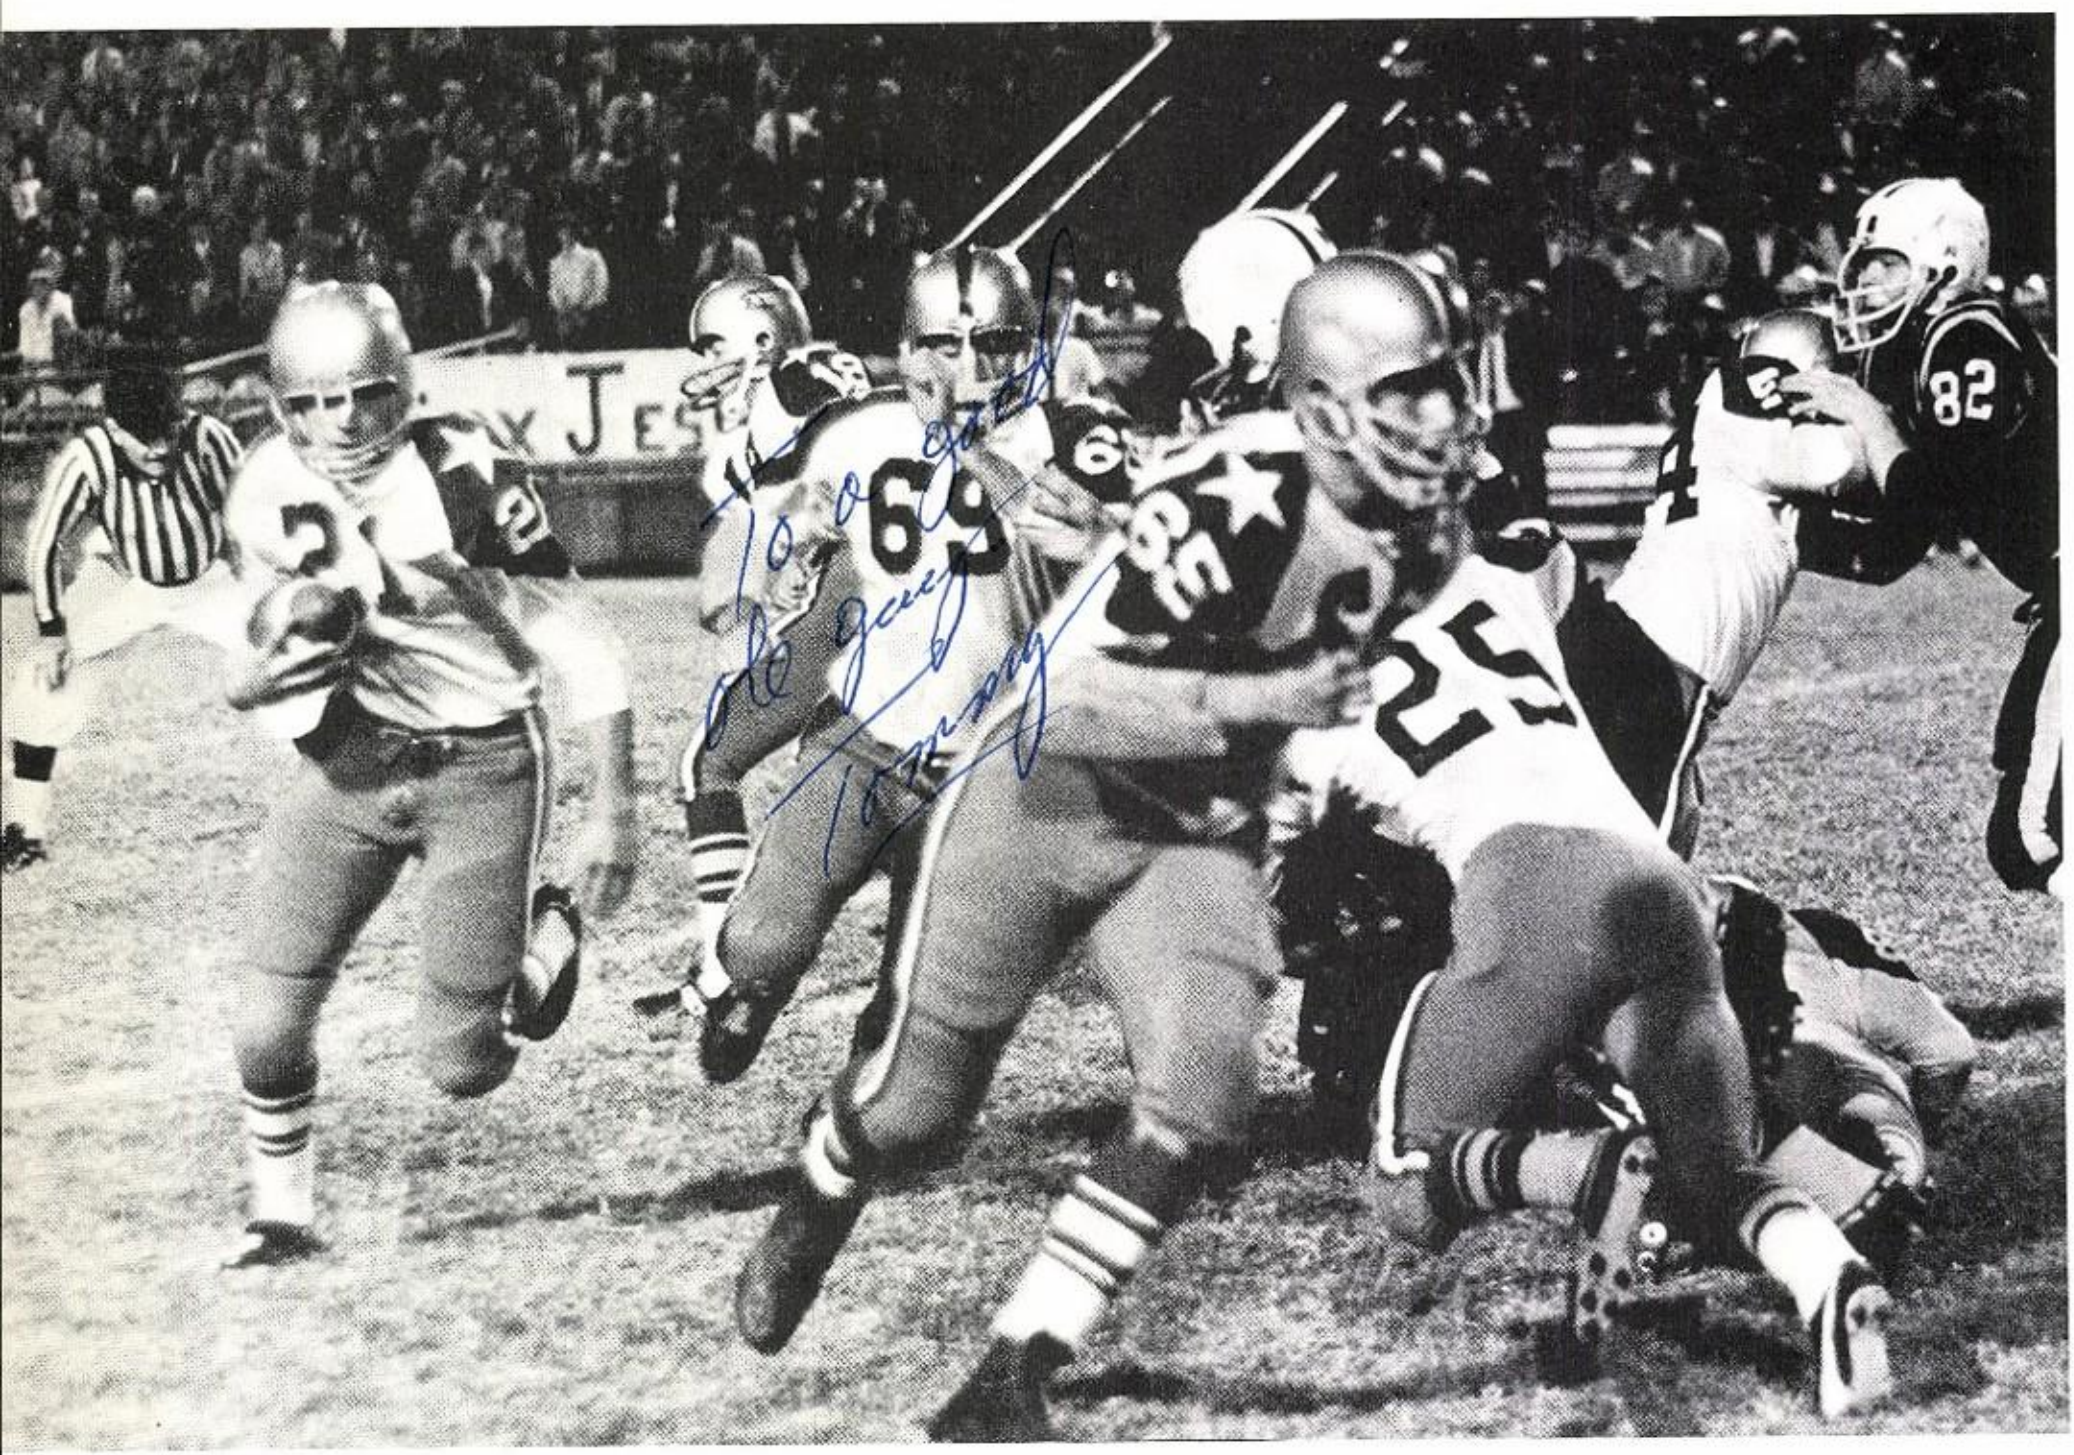
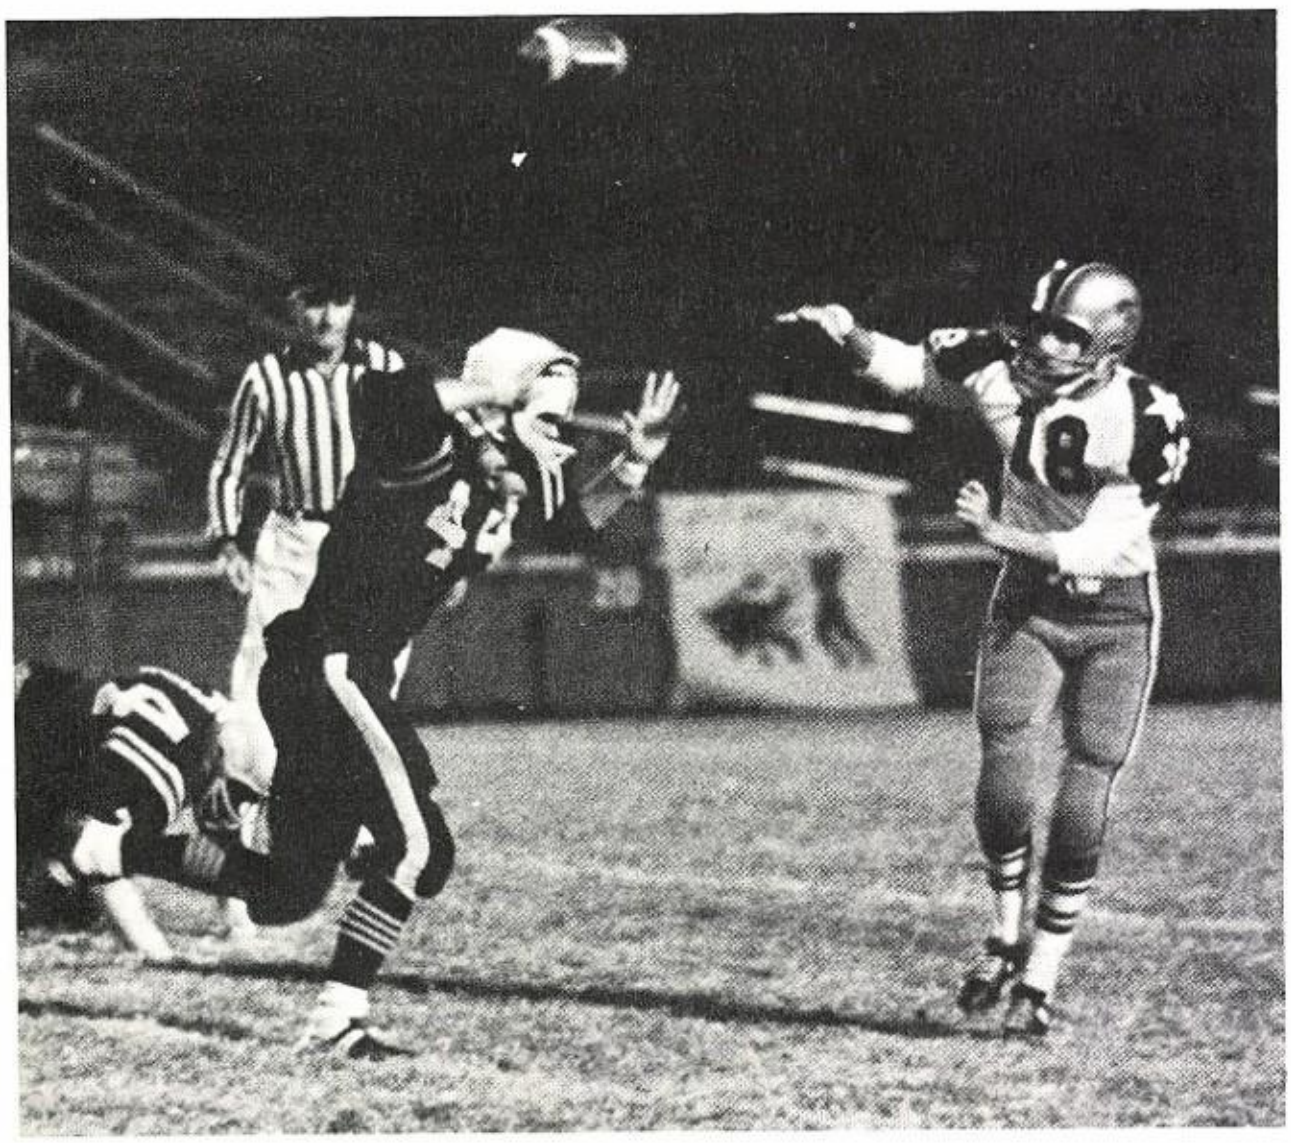
HOMECOMING





In 1967 Jesuit for the second year in a row defeated every other team in its district, and advanced into the playoffs.

JESUIT DISTRICT CHAMPS

District IAA

We were again told what we took as an obvious fact, Coach Brocato was named outstanding district coach.

In the play-offs Jesuit defeated every foe, except one. That one was Central who out-scored the Flyers 7-0. The bottom picture shows both line and backfield action in that game.

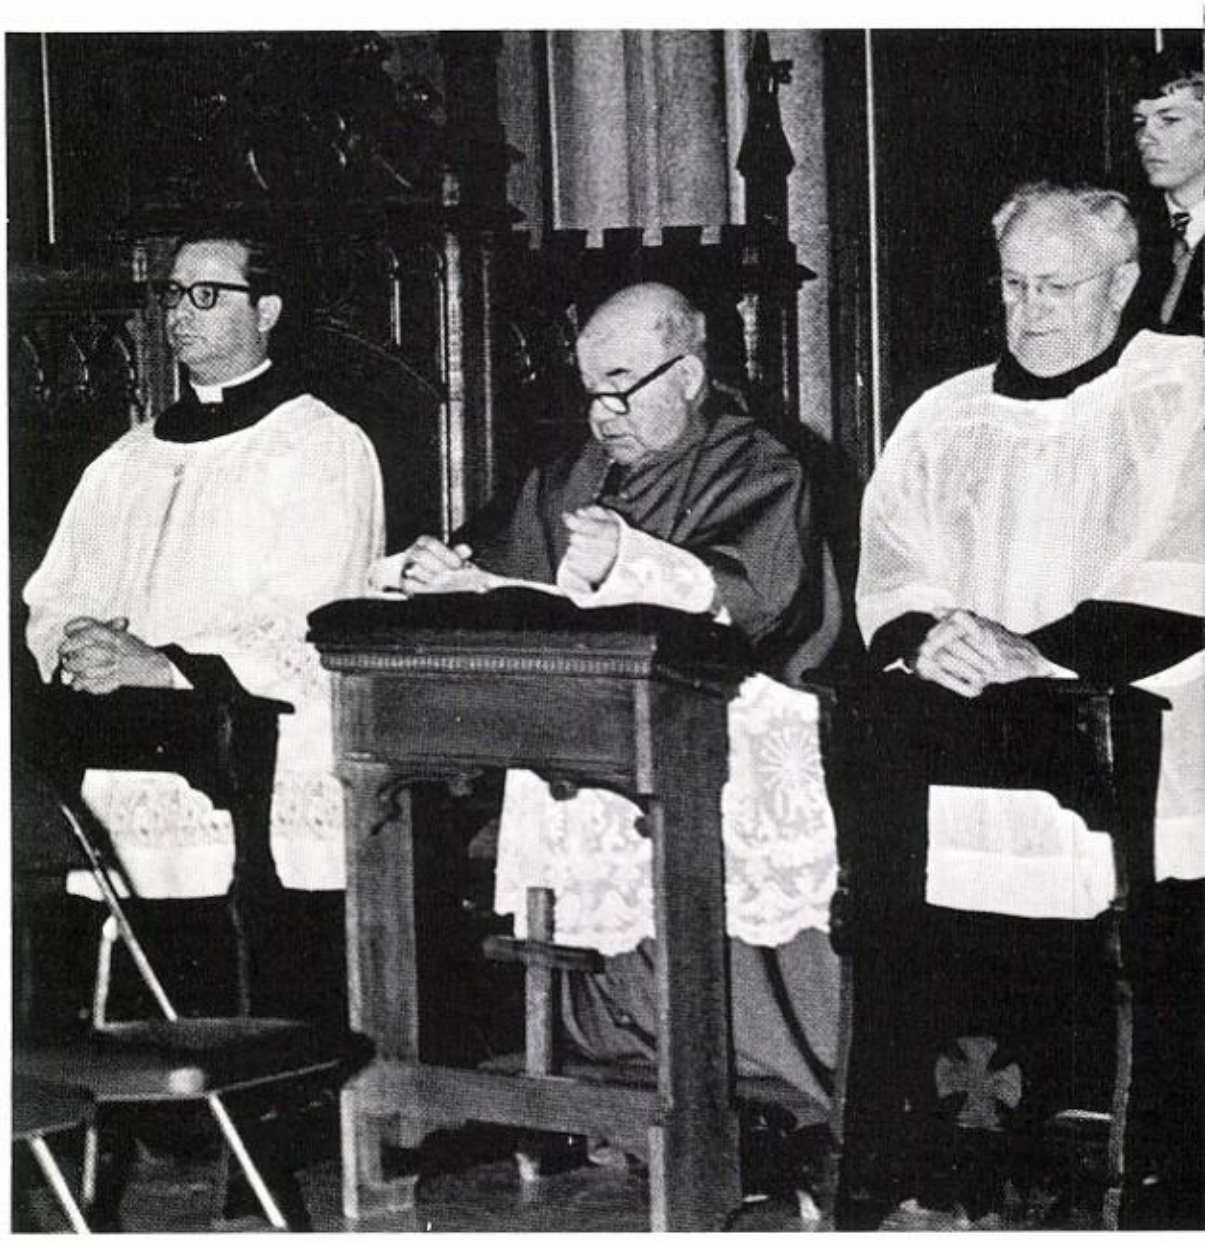
BENEFACTOR'S MASS

Each year Jesuit High School sets aside a day for the people who pay with their time and money to keep the doors open and the truth flowing at Jesuit of Shreveport.

Above: Fr. Weber, president of Jesuit High School, with past presidents and friends of the school concelebrates the Mass.

At right: Among the well-wishers was Bishop Charles P. Greco of Alexandria.



The year 1967 has been a sobering year, for we have witnessed with sorrow the death of a former teacher and the death of a fellow student.

To many of us Mr. Salvail was only the father of a classmate. But to the long line of graduates of Jesuit High between the years 1949 and 1961 he was a dedicated teacher and a source of inspiration.

Charles Barbour was only 14 when he died. For many in the school this was their first experience with death, and they were saddened by the loss of a fellow student. But to the members of 1C and Charlie's many friends it was more; it was a personal loss of a classmate and a close friend.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Not very long ago, ordinary people like you and me lived in what strongly looked like a "no-think" culture. Of course, books were read, people discussed and argued, wage owners worked, housewives got chapped hands and looked out of kitchen windows, and just about all of us went to church. But thinking really wasn't our own: everybody thought, but not their own thoughts. Thoughts were like flowers painted on a wall: they didn't grow and they didn't die. They were just there. And I suppose life was simple though rather dull, at least in comparison to what living is today.

You have a chance to belong to the "think" generation. But you'll have to choose for it. To be part of it, you'll have to know something about it. First of all you'll have to be as honest as a child's tongue; yes, you'll have to tell the truth and not just let things act on you. You'll have to discover the greatest of all created truths—the People of God. And lastly you'll have to know and forward the thrust of the People of God, and that thrust is an ever greater convergence towards unity and love. You'll have to care for every human: the war in Vietnam will be yours whether you get there or not; the poor will be your brothers as never before; the hungry will be at your table, somehow; and you will look at the Negro and see a brother. Yours will be to vote the truth, to talk the truth, to love the truth, to be the truth. The alternative is to become the only thing that will not survive—the hermit who gets sick, not knowing why, on the diet of his own narrow self.

Search for the truth, and, if you look hard enough, in its wake will follow some good, some love, happiness with some suffering, and the Christ, who calmly awaits at the center and draws you.
